SHIPS FOR NANTASKET

HULL—In the belief that the operation of the Nantasket steamboat line next summer is vital to the interests of Hull, a group of business men applied today for a charter for the bankrupt line. A receiver was to be appointed in bankruptcy court today. The proposed charter will name the new company the Nantasket-Boston Steamboat Line, taking the place of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company. The new company will be incorporated for $200,000.

WEEK'S AUTO DEAD 17

BOSTON—Although 17 persons were killed in automobile accidents in Massachusetts during the week ending Jan. 5, it was two less than in the previous week and one less than in the corresponding week a year ago.

Of those killed, four were children, one less than in the same period a year ago. Ten of the fatalities were pedestrians, five were occupants of automobiles and two were coasters.

TRUCK DRIVERS OBJECT

BOSTON—New wage and working conditions, proposed by a group of master truck owners of Boston, were rejected by the Truck Drivers' Union 25, yesterday.

An agreement between the drivers and owners expired Dec. 31. The men ask increased wages and a 45-hour week, in place of the present 54-hour week. The master truckmen offered a shorter work week without increase in wages.

Examinations For Candidates To West Point

While many Members of Congress make their appointments to the Military and Naval Academies without using the competitive system of examination, Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers from careful study finds the competitive examinations are helpful.

The competitive examination not only provides an opportunity for all the young men in the Fifth Congressional District to be considered for the appointment, but it secures the best qualified young men for the course at the academies and the best officers for our Army and Navy after graduation from the four year course.

To pick the best qualified young men for the appointments is not an easy task for the courses are most exacting and difficult, and often times even with the competitive system of examination, the young man chosen is unable to make the grade, and is compelled to retire without graduating and without becoming an officer. The opportunities at the academies for young men especially well qualified and adapted for military and naval life are many as the rating system is strictly enforced and the young men showing scholastic, athletic, and other qualifications in leadership are given special assignments. On graduation the young men highest in the class have first choice for assignment as officers in the Army and Navy, and during recent years the men with low ratings have not secured commissions and have been compelled to retire after graduation. At the present time, the competitive examination seems most desirable, and it gives every young man in the Congressional District an opportunity to secure the appointment his prospects depending upon his mental and physical qualifications to fill the cadetship.

Cold Snap To Follow Rain

Arlington was drenched in a driving rain which came down throughout the day yesterday and continued through the night. Streets were made slippery and with a heavy fog last night, vehicular and pedestrian traffic was dangerous.

Continued rain for the greater part of today, ending tonight with the arrival of a new cold wave which will force the mercury down to within 20 degrees of zero, is the weather bureau's forecast.

Yesterday the mercury hovered around the 40-degree notch, with moderate northwest winds prevailing. The colder weather predicted for tonight will come on the heels of a brisk East wind.

Dog Poisoning Still A Mystery

Nothing new has developed in connection with the mysterious poisoning of half a dozen dogs in the Bloomfield Hill section of Lexington, causing the death of four valuable dogs and serious illness to two others from what the authorities believe was strychnine.

The police have been unable to determine the source of the poison and also whether it was put out with malicious intent or not.

More Books Borrowed Last Year Than Ever Before, Figures Show—Increased Leisure Time Is Believed Responsible For Condition—Drop In Use Of Heights Branch Library Is Noted—Several Gifts Made To Library During Past Year

While the Robbins Public Library and its branches have been affected by a reduced appropriation during the past year, and fewer books were purchased, the demands by readers have increased over the previous year, according to figures revealed by Mrs. Lucinda Spofford, head librarian today.

Increased use of library facilities has come to be accepted as normal. The following figures show the use of Robbins Library for the year of 1933 as compared with the previous year:

HOLY NAME SERVICES AT ST. AGNES' CHURCH ATTRACT LARGE NUMBER

Several hundred men of St. James' Arlington Heights, St. Raphael's, West Medford and St. Agnes' Church in the Centre braved the driving rain yesterday afternoon to attend the annual union services of the Holy Name Society in St. Agnes' Church.

The singing of hymns composed by Cardinal O'Connell, including his "Hymn to the Holy Name" which was written especially for the society were sung at the most impressive services. The benediction of the Blessed Sacrament climaxed the observance of the day.

The same interest was shown throughout the diocese as thousands of devout worshippers disregarded the rain and fog to attend the services in Catholic churches throughout the diocese.

Special Holy Name services were held in 60 centers throughout the greater city.

Cardinal O'Connell presided at the Holy Cross Cathedral services, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. James G. Hennessey, D. D.

In the morning, the feast day was observed by general communion for all the men in their respective parish churches.

In the afternoon, men from the parishes of the Cathedral, Holy Trinity, St. Mary, St. Joseph, St. James, St. Stephen, St. Leonard, Sacred Heart, St. Cecilia, Our Lady of Pompell, St. Philip, Immaculate Conception, Our Lady of Cedars, Syrian, St. Joseph, Our Lady of Ostrorama, and Boston, assembled at the Cathedral for the union service there.

Four-Man Offense Effective

By BOB FOREST

Showing improvement in every line the Arlington High hockey team defeated Rindge 4 to 1 in an Interscholastic League game at the Boston Garden last Saturday before the largest crowd to ever witness the Schoolboy hockey games. "We can't lose," seems to be the byword of the hockey team this year. Last week they were licked twice. It seemed almost impossible for them to win yet they pulled the game out of the fire and tied a strong Newton team. Rindge got an early lead Saturday when a man wasn't covered properly and beat Sakolian to allow Rindge a one goal lead through to the second period when after eight minutes of play Sullivan tied up the game. It was all Arlington from then on, two Arlington goalies only having to make five stops in two periods, three in the second and one each in the last period.

The four-man offense which Arlington has a tendency to work every now and then and especially in the last period of these two games is highly offensive and the team that holds Arlington scoreless this year will have to be very strong.

Daddy Sunshine Club Rules

1. Be kind and helpful to others.
2. Look both ways when crossing streets.
3. Always be kind to dumb animals.
4. Write a letter to Daddy Sunshine, or have Mother or Dad write it for you, every now and then.
5. Try to bring a "Ray of Sunshine" into the lives of your parents and others every day of the week and every week of the year.

These rules are not very difficult for good girls and boys to keep. Most of them are kept by them anyway.

Mail your letters and stories to Daddy Sunshine, in care of this paper. He will answer them in the Daddy Sunshine column.

Write on but one side of the paper, and place your age and address on the letter after your name. Give the day, month and year of your birth.

To join the club all you have to do is promise to keep the rules—and keep them.

BE TRUE SUNSHINERS

We are all anxious to spread Sunshine—to make others happy; or at least we should be if we desire to be true Sunshiners.

There are many ways in which this might be done, and we ourselves be better off for so doing.

Let's mention several: Forget that grudge you have for so-and-so; stop talking about that girl you dislike, if you can't say anything nice about her, or will not; be more friendly to brother or sister, and not always ready to take offense, even though you may feel you have been hurt; be more willing to give up play or something that interests you to be of service to your mother or dad when they request something of you; try always to be friendly, particularly to some one who needs your friendship because others don't think they are worth attention, and never willingly hurt any little girl or boy just because you feel you have reason to do so.

Don't spread a story about someone because some one says it is true. As a rule these stories are untrue and are started by girls and boys who have no charity or Sunshine in their hearts. Show that you are different. Refuse to believe tales, and be the first to tell those who carry such tales, that they are committing a great wrong. If you follow this advice you will not only be real Sunshiners, but you will be liked and respected by all who know you—and that is worth the while of everybody, young and old alike.

COASTING SCENES

Oh! Yes we know
The soft white snow
Adorns the outdoor scene.
The kiddies will
Coast down the hill
In joy that is supreme.

In winter caps
And comfy wraps
Their cheeks and noses red.
Time quickly glides
As each one rides
And drags the treasured sled.

When darkness comes
These daughters, sons,
Reluctant homeward creep.
The good food there
They scarcely share
But ah! They'll soundly sleep.

That's what we know
About the snow
And what its coming means.
Though we are men
We live with them—
The children's coasting scenes.

BANK CHECK STYLES CHANGE FOR ECONOMY

Boston banks are reducing the variety of checks they issue and where "in the old days" customers were offered choice of as many as 50 or 60 styles they now are limited to one-fifth or even one-tenth that number. Efforts at cutting expenses have speeded the movement, which had been going ahead slowly for several years.

The banks also have lessened the number of styles of checks for their own use—some to a single style—and the number of different forms. Banks use a surprisingly large number of various types and sizes—in one bank, by no means the largest, 800 forms, some in two colors.

Most of the banks in Boston now are down to from five to ten varieties and colors of customer's checks. Many bankers believe the ideal thing to do would be to issue only two sizes and colors, one for business concerns, the other for personal use. It would greatly facilitate the handling of the millions of checks that go through the Boston Clearing House every year, as well as those passing through and being returned to the banks. Years ago one of the important New York city banks issued only two styles of checks and their reddish color made them so distinctive that bankers recognized them on sight.

WANTS LAW TO SAVE MAYORS FROM FRAUD TRIALS

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, who won a victory in Suffolk Court yesterday the three judges who heard the "election fraud" case officially found no proof of corrupt practice and refused to void his recent re-election, states he will seek to amend the law so no other Mayor will be forced to go through a similar trial unless there is ample evidence of fraud or corruption.

U. S. BUTTER BUREAU AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield will be the processing and distributing centre for several million pounds of butter allotted for relief ration by the federal government. The distribution will be handled through a big butter warehouse. It is estimated the plant will handle 1,000,000 pounds monthly during February and March and probably will continue for some time. The capacity will be doubled to handle the distribution and work is expected to start next week.

ASKS CIVIL SERVICE FOR POSTMASTERS

Saying it was convinced the removal of all political consideration in the appointment of postmasters would effect an economy the civil service commission has recommended to President Roosevelt the placing of all first, second and third class postmaster-ships under civil service law.

The commission made the recommendation in its annual report, renewing a proposal made for the number of years, and at the same time expressing the opinion that other administrative offices which are not policy-determining, should be brought within the competitive classified service.

These would include collectors of customs and collectors of internal revenue, as well as deputy collectors of internal revenue, deputy marshals and most attorneys. It noted the President recently requested the postmaster-general to draft a bill for presentation at the coming session of Congress to provide for appointing of the postmasters of of the three classes under civil service as the fourth class postmasters now are appointed.

"The chief real duty of the postoffice department is to collect and distribute the mails satisfactorily and at the lowest possible cost," said the commission.

"A postmastership, therefore, is a business office and is not properly political. The commission believes the most practical way of bringing these postmaster-ships within the competitive classified service, would be to set by law a definite date, say a number of years hence, after which all offices of postmaster would be filled through open competition or promotion under the civil service law and rules."

LOWELL NOT ABLE TO MEET PAYROLLS

Although it has nearly a quarter of a million dollars in the treasury, the city of Lowell has failed to meet current payrolls amounting to $30,000. They included those of firemen, police and all other municipal employees on the weekly wage basis.

In announcing his inability to meet the payroll, the city treasurer said the teachers' salary payroll of about $85,000, due next Monday, also probably would not be paid.

The reason for the payroll default was that practically all the money at hand has been earmarked to meet 1933 note obligations. No money will be available for payroll purposes until either more tax collections are made or money secured on a loan.

Rigid Economy At Washington

EMPLOYMENT and wages in the wholesale and retail trade of Massachusetts increased substantially during the month of October, as reported by the State Department of Labor and Industry.

Industrial payrolls of Durham, N. C., as compiled by the Durham Chamber of Commerce, made a gain for the week ending November 4, 1933, of $88,437.24 over the same week of a year ago.

Bank clearings in the five-day business week ended November 8th were up 24.2 per cent from a year ago, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

YOUNG GIRLS—elderly women—receiving 20¢ a dozen for hemming baby dresses and making the buttonholes . . . being paid five cents apiece for making evening purses which bore the label, "Made in France", (the beaded fabric which they worked on came from Paris) . . . earning $3.20 a week sewing dresses on a power machine. . . . Today they are receiving a Blue Eagle pay envelope which contains a living wage . . . never less than $13 for a full time week . . . a week that's comfortably filled, with no over-time and a generous lunch hour. These are facts. Similar signs of progress prevail in many industries. Continued buying insures healthful living and working conditions—nationally.

CHARGES FOR BANK SERVICE

Like all important questions of policy there are two sides to the question of charges for bank services. Just now the public is gasping a bit at the premature announcements that were made of proposed charges for all the minor banking services, and public opinion must be taken into consideration. At the same time the banks have their side. The banking code is a factor. The necessity for making money is a factor. Undoubtedly the banks have carried many accounts at a loss. They should not be required to do this. They should be compensated for their services reasonably, either by direct charge of by the opportunity to make money through their natural functions as banks. It is important that the public take a reasonable view of the basic principle involved.

But it is also highly important that the bank take a reasonable view of the public's needs. Anything that tends to choke the free passage of checks will slow down recovery, and that, in the final analysis, will hurt the banks as much as it does business. The early announcements from New York looked as though the banks there had decided to revive the old principle of "all the traffic will bear." The creation of such an atmosphere just at this time is most unfortunate. If there must be charges, let them be reasonable. Just now the average small business is staggering under a load of debt, taxation and slow collections. It already pays a Federal tax on every check, and when some of the banks evince a tendency to put a further load on checks, they are being just as unreasonable as is that part of the public which thinks it should get service for nothing.

A LESSON IN BUTTER

The latest attempt of the government to peg the price of a great commodity has gone the way of the efforts to maintain the price of wheat and cotton and has ended in failure, according to economists studying the dairying industry of the country. Uncle Sam now has the biggest surplus of butter of record. Prices have dropped and may go even lower in the next few months. Four million pigs were slaughtered by the government without increasing the price of hogs to the farmer—the price is lower now than when the pig program was put into effect. Perhaps the Brain Trust will have something new to offer in the way of getting rid of the surplus butter. On December 1, there were a hundred million pounds more in the country than on the same date in 1932.

A great many dairy farmers lay the blame for the present condition on to the fact that the government went into the butter business. Through a Dairy Marketing commission at Washington the government supplied funds to buy 75,000,000 pounds of butter. This was to be used later for furnishing butter during the winter to the unemployed, and to take care of any losses in the transaction, a butter processing tax was to be put into effect early in 1934.

This was back in the early fall. The effect was tremendous from the psychological standpoint. Farmers, encouraged in the belief that the government would furnish them a high price for their butterfat, commenced milking every available cow and sending every available pound of the product to the market. The manufacturers of cheese and evaporated milk suffering from a canned milk and cheese surplus, got into the butter game. It looked like an easy thing, with Uncle Sam holding the bag.

Prices did remain firm for awhile under the famous pegging system, and then the bubble burst. So much butter came on to the market from so many different sources that the price shrivelled and so much was manufactured under the stimulus of government price pegging that on December 1 stocks of butter on hand were more than 138,000,000 pounds, compared with a stock of less than 38,000,000 pounds on December 1, 1932, a gain of more than 100,000,000 pounds. And the price had gone down more than 50 per cent. It is hard to beat the law of supply and demand and Uncle Sam cannot do it, even under the expert tutelage of the Brain Trust.

Butter-makers say that the unemployed cannot passibly consume the government's stock of butter, 60,000,000 pounds, by the first of May, the time when production will be on in full blast again. But the government experts say that the unemployed can and will do it. No doubt every effort will be made to see that they do eat it. One of the first big tasks of Professor Tugwell and his band of warriors would, therefore, seem to be to make the unemployed of the country butter conscious.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

by
Edson R. White

When citizens know how to work together for the advancement of worthy projects, that city is sure to grow.

Citizens should never overlook anything that will add to the permanent prosperity, comfort and attractiveness of the home city.

A cheery, hearty welcome to all visitors brings a good feeling toward a city.

A little play is as necessary for the busy man as it is for the children in the schools.

Some men never play.

All work and no play will make a crab out of the best of us. Don't be a crab!

Boosting and working for the home city are a pleasure. You can make it like play. Why not try it? To try it would be to like it, and everybody can do more when they do things they like to do. Boost your home city!

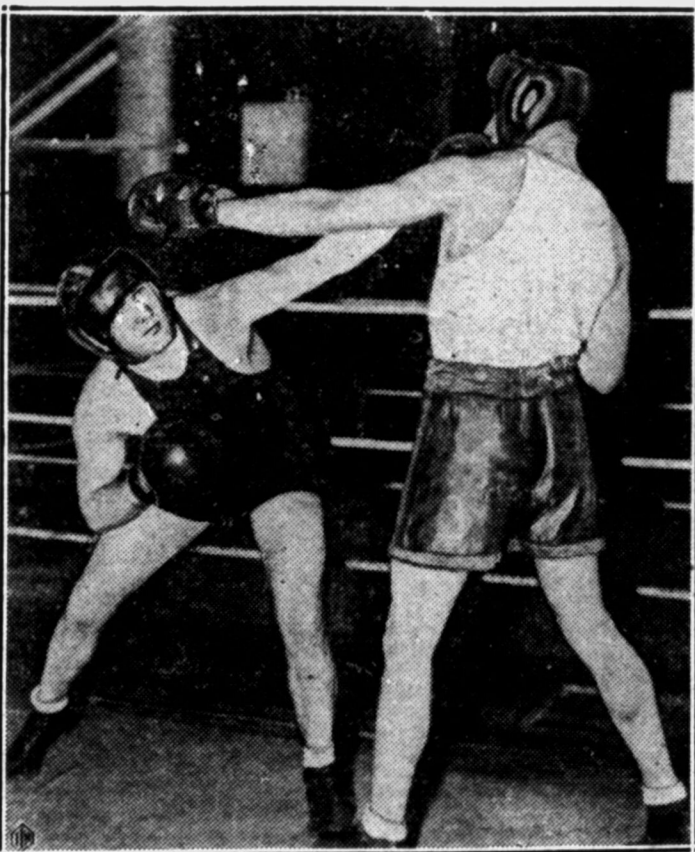

TWIN THEATRES

Miss Eleanor Lovegren of Belmont, who was chosen from the passengers on the Nantasket boat this summer as the New England girl having the greatest screen possibilities, will be seen for the first time in Boston in "Eight Girls in a Boat" which will be presented at the Paramount and Fenway theatres starting Thursday, January 11th. "Eight Girls in a Boat" was based on a European film of the same title which proved to be a sensation on the continent. Instead of revising the film for American exhibition, as was done with "Maedchen in Uniform", Mr. Rogers re-filmed the story complete with a cast including Dorothy Wilson, Kay Johnson, Douglass Montgomery, Walter Connolly and eight beautiful girls picked from every section of the country by means of a great nation-wide contest.

The story tells of Christa Stora, a young student at a select girls' school where thoughts are all of romance, forbidden romance, as stern rules of the school forbid even thoughts of love. Yet Christa meets a boy, falls in love with a result, unforeseen but inevitable. The boy falls her; she cannot tell her father and she is gripped with fear lest her secret be discovered. How she solves her problem produces one of the most unexpected climaxes ever screened.

The companion feature on the bill will be the hilarious Fox comedy, "Olson's Big Moment", starring El Brendel, Walter Catlett, Barbara Weeks and Susan Fleming, said to be one of the funniest comedies of the year.

Brushing Up for Title Bout

Preparing for his championship bout with Primo Carnera, Tommy Loughran (left), perennial contender for fistic honors, engages in a brisk workout with Ed Houghton, his stable mate, at Philadelphia. Loughran is to battle the giant Italian at Miami, Fla., next month.

Rum Row Battie Renewed by Coast Guard as Smuggling Increases

Revenue Value of the Return of Liquor Is Dependent on the Coast Guard's Ability to Stop Smuggling

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Rum Row is blossoming again. But this time—now that the Eighteenth Amendment has been repealed—Rum Row is just a gang of tax dodgers. Rum Row has lost the sympathy gained through a national thirst during Prohibition days.

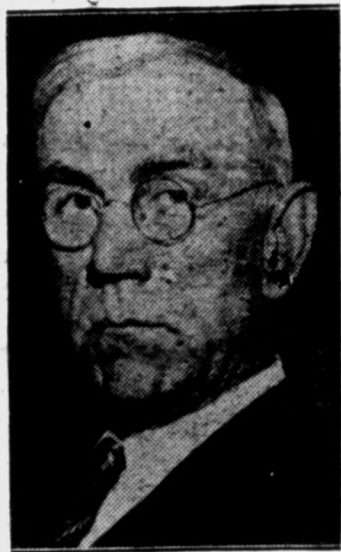

Diamonds and pearls are expensive. And the temptation is great to smuggle them into the United States. But the U. S. Customs Service never relaxes its vigilance and responsible Coast Guard officials believe it will be just as difficult, now that repeal has arrived, to smuggle rum as diamonds.

Dope is costly, the Coast Guard points out. Addicts are willing to pay fancy prices for it. Oriental cunning must be overcome and syndicates of smugglers at European Free ports must be outwitted. The Customs Service has frustrated them time and again in enforcement of the Harrison anti-narcotics act.

The Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act of 1930 was the center of a bitter political controversy as having imposed the most prohibitive customs levies in American history. Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, the then chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, was heckled and badgered many times in his defense of the bill. Never once did Senator Smoot assert on the Senate Floor, or off of it, that he doubted the ability of the Federal Government to collect his tariffs merely because they were high. Foes of the Smoot bill never asserted the rates might offer a temptation to smuggling.

Now comes repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and Rum Row is blossoming again. Some estimates are to the effect that upwards of a half million cases of whiskey, chiefly Canadian, have been smuggled into the United States from the Virginia Capes to Massachusetts. Other reports assert that officials at the little island of Beau Saint Pierre, off the New Foundland coast, are giving clearance papers to a fleet of forty to sixty rum running vessels about whose ultimate destination there can be slight question. Liquor smuggling from the British possessions into Florida ports is declared to be growing rapidly.

Officials in Washington agree that liquor smuggling increased in anti-pation of repeal. They asserted it was due, in large measure, to high prices of domestic liquors advertised by the first-in-the-field distributors, before the distillers disclosed their prices for highgrade blends of whiskeys. On every case of smuggled whiskey, the Federal government lost $18.30 in revenue.

Reed Smoot, co-author of Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act. Never once did he say his high tariffs could not be enforced against smugglers.

Measures are expected to enforce collection of the proper tariff and revenues against foreign wines and whiskeys which will be just as effective as those against the dope rings, the jewel smugglers and the Oriental and European immigrant racketeers.

It is not alone that millions of dollars in Federal revenues are involved, but three other factors:

First: Repeal of the 18th Amendment was intended to end the reign of the underworld racketeer and corrupt politics.

Second: The Customs Service always has been on a higher plane than any to which the Prohibition Enforcement Service could aspire under its political influences and limitations.

Third: The Federal and State governments acquire revenues and they have an incentive now to collect those revenues for unemployment relief and balanced budgets.

Surely Uncle Sam is not going to admit impotence before Rum Row!

ADVERTISING HELPS SELL NEW ENGLAND PRODUCTS

New England manufacturers displayed their proverbial Yankee ingenuity in the development and successful advertising and merchandising of new products and new ideas during 1933, judging by the results of a year-end survey made by Harper's Bazaar and reported to the New England Council today. The report of fashion merchandising compiled by this fashion publication shows outstanding examples of skillful selling in a number of fields by manufacturing firms all over New England, the Council was informed.

Space advertising and other methods were successfully used to promote the sale of new patterns of sterling silver flatware, put on the market in 1933 by several New England silver manufacturers, the publication points out. These firms included the Gorham Company, Providence, R. I.; International Silver Company, Meriden, Conn.; R. Wallace and Sons Company, Wallingford, Conn.; and Rogers, Lunt, and Bowlen Company, Greenfield, Mass. All four firms used timely and original advertising plans and enlisted the cooperation of retail dealers, the report says. In one case the manufacturers advertised the names of dealers, and was in turn supported by the dealers themselves with large advertisements of his new silver design in metropolitan dailies.

Conspicuous in the survey is rapid development of new designs to meet changed fashion demands by several manufacturers last year. The William Carter Company, Needham Heights, Mass., maker of foundation garments, produced garments newly designed to meet the requirements of the clothes shown in the August Paris openings so promptly that by October hundreds of retail stores selling the company's products were capitalizing upon its advertising program as well, the Harper's Bazaar report points out. The Aurora Company, costume jewelry division of the Uncas Manufacturing Company, Providence, R. I., at the first indication of the fashion for jeweled hair ornaments, designed and in less than a month had put on the market a complete line of clips, combs, and tiaras, which was introduced by an advertising campaign. Another firm to capitalize on fashion trends was the Stetson Shoe Company, South Weymouth, Mass., the report states. This firm matched its shoes to fall fashions in fabrics and accessories, and featured the correct combinations in its advertising. Metal fabric bags designed to harmonize with various types of costumes were developed and promoted by Whiting and Davis Company, Plainville, Mass., the report points out.

A completely new type of women's garter was patented and displayed.

popularized by the Everett and Barton Company, Providence, R. I., according to the survey. A new kind of button, made of cowhide, introduced by the United Carr Fastener Company, Cambridge, Mass., was advertised by that company and also by the United States Rubber Company, which used the new fastening on the raincoats it manufactured in 1933. The advertising for these coats, which were styled from models by Paris designers, stressed the idea that rainproof garments need not be dowdy.

The recent revival of bicycling as a popular sport was promptly capitalized upon by New England bicycle makers, including the Cycle Trades of America, Bristol, Conn., which instituted a promotion campaign including space advertising, and the Ivor Johnson Arms and Cycle Works, Fitchburg, Mass., which developed and advertised an exerciser attachment which could be used indoors on their bicycles, the survey shows.

Consistent advertising by the manufacturer as well as by retailers is considered by the fashion publication to be responsible in large measure for the continuous success of quality textile goods, such as those of the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, Boston, and the Wamsutta Mills, New Bedford, Mass., the report declares.

Ingenuous promotion campaigns in which manufacturer and retailer, or manufacturers of related goods, unite in their advertising, are becoming more frequent. The Harper's Bazaar survey calls attention to several among New England manufacturers last year. Lever Brothers Company, Cambridge, Mass., maker of soap products, took advantage of last summer's vogue for washable fabrics in women's clothes by an advertising and sales campaign, which was supported by individual department store and textile company advertising. The American Hide and Leather Company, Boston, ran a consumer advertising program featuring a shoe made from one of its leathers by the George E. Keith Company, Brockton, Mass. Laird Schober and Company shoes with a new type sole made by Dewey and Almy Company, Cambridge, Mass., were advertised by both firms in one promotion plan, the report shows.

The Harper's Bazaar study shows the increasing recognition among New England manufacturing firms of the principles of new product development and aggressive merchandising which have been consistently stressed by the New England Council. It was pointed out. The Council's Industrial Committee annually sponsors a New Products Conference and Exposition for New England manufacturers, in which current developments are

Treasury Head and "Kingfish"

Although Senator Huey P. PROF. J. B. HAYDANE

MARK E. RIDGE

ERNEST LOEBELL and EDWARD HANNA

Success of experiments on both sides of the Atlantic make feasible the prediction that a journey from New York to London in 2 1/2 hours, via the stratosphere, may be accomplished within a year. Prof. J. B. S. Haydane made the prediction following tests in which Mark E. Ridge, Massachusetts aviator, proved that a man can live under atmospheric pressure equal to that encountered in the stratosphere, without artificial aid. On this side of the Atlantic, "Ted" Hanna of Cleveland and Ernest Loebell, German engineer, have developed a motor which they believe capable of lifting a craft to the stratosphere. It is a rocket motor, which they plan to install in a rocket ship and shoot 15 miles into the stratosphere. No passengers will make the trip, but scientific instruments will be sent up, which will be returned to earth via parachute.

WEEI On Air 6,194 Hours During '33

Data from the operating log book of Broadcasting Station WEEI, 1,000-watt outlet of the Edison Company of Boston, reveals, for the calendar year 1933, a sum total of 23 3-4 minutes in transmitter outages. In the opinion of station officials, who are unflinching in their praise of the work of the operating staff, the negligible accumulative period of interruption in the course of the year probably establishes a record among stations on a similar operating schedule.

Station WEEI served its listening public a total of 6,194 hours and 14 minutes in the year 1933, or a daily average of 17 hours. In other words, the omnipresent hazard of mechanical failure, together with possible interruption due to an "act of God," such as lightning or sleet storm, resulted in an average interruption of broadcast service for the year of less than two minutes per month.

Causes of failure which are identified in detail include fuse and resistance failures as well as a two-minute interruption caused by lightning. It is also interesting to know that one of the interruptions was of twelve minutes' duration, more than half the outage total for the year. The months of May, July, August, and November were devoid of service interruption entirely.

Tube failure, which radio transmitter operators identify as the most annoying among operating troubles, is conspicuously absent in the 1933 outage report of the Edison station. Frequent tests and recordings are made on tube efficiencies with the result that tubes are replaced promptly when a test anticipates trouble. Beyond the value of such precaution from the operating viewpoint, the testing has revealed one tube at the WEEI transmitter that is a constant source of interest, even to the tube manufacturer, because of its continuing high operating efficiency after two and one-half years' use—a most unusual performance according to technical radio opinion.

by the gifts which it has received during the year.

The gifts, although not large in amount bespeak a feeling of good will, interest and a knowledge of the real purposes of the library.

Mrs. Arthur Wellington presented a pair of wrought iron andirons, The Garden Club a Christmas wreath, Christmas tree and many beautiful and unique floral decorations, also five dollars for the purchase of garden books.

The Women's Club presented a pair of andirons for use in the Junior Library Hall, and a pair of ornamental iron plant containers which are fastened to light poles at either side of the library entrance. In the summer they are filled with growing plants and evergreens in the winter.

Art Committee of Women's Club has been responsible for three art exhibits during the year. They exhibited oil paintings by Donald Knowles, of Brookline, Charles Morton of Arlington and water colors by Arthur W. McMurtry of Cambridge. There have also been exhibits of stamps, ship models, girl scout handicraft work, and Junior High Industrial Art class. An exhibit arranged by Mrs. Marion Ford, Supervisor of Drawing, which showed the work of Belmont, Lexington, Somerville, Stoneham, and Arlington Art classes was largely attended.

Collins is the fourth man on the offense and his work was sensational Saturday. Lane also on the defense played a considerably improved game over the week before and although the defense slipped once, they learned never to make that mistake again and they were unpassable almost the entire game.

Two of the Arlington goals were lucky, but made up for the bad luck that Arlington had on previous sorties at the enemies' goal. Once Collins broke loose with only the goalie between him and a goal, but a great save with a lot of luck prevented a score. Sullivan, Lax, and Gardella all were in the bad luck when they just missed scoring. Time after time the Rindge goalie with phenomenal stops prevented scores. The Arlington team should find easy going against an unlucky goalie or, we might say, a poor one. They have faced the two best goalies in the league in the first two games and yet have the record of being the highest scoring sextette.

Lax Is Star

Lax was the keystone of the Arlington team on the second line with Sullivan the big man on the other line although Gardella's poke check was mighty effective at times. Coach Charlie Downes threw his substitutes into the fray in the last minutes of play and gave them some valuable experience. Kingman went into the goal for Sakolan.
